SUNDAY 6 DECEMBER 2015: 7.30PM

THE PITTVILLE PUMP ROOM, CHELTENHAM

We are delighted to announce that the legendary Emanuel Ax, one of the finest performers on the platform today, and a great favourite with our audiences, has agreed to visit us once again, this time with a lovely all Beethoven programme. This will be the only chance to hear him in the UK between now and June 2016. After this concert was confirmed we found that our usual venue of St James' church was unavailable so, rather than miss this wonderful opportunity, we decided to relocate to the magnificent Pittville Pump room in Cheltenham.

Emanuel Ax captured public attention in 1974 when he won the first Arthur Rubinstein International Piano Competition in Tel Aviv. He is now one of the world's best-loved pianists renowned for musicianship of the highest quality and performances of enormous integrity. His self-effacing approach to music making is a wonderful antidote to some of the 'showmen' of the keyboard.

We expect a huge demand for tickets for this concert but to make it as 'level a playing field' as possible we are not asking for sponsorship or offering any priority booking periods. We will date all forms as they come in and, when booking opens on 1 October they will be processed in the order in which we received them. So do please send your booking form in ASAP.
